Life In The Key Of C

Music. There are probably few areas about which people are so quick to express their likes and dislikes and yet have so little technical knowledge. At Cedarville College, we expose our faculty, staff, students, alumni, and visitors to a variety of musical and artistic expressions. These may range from a Pops concert to a philharmonic orchestra concert, from the Cathedrals Quartet to a presentation of Handel's Messiah. Some would say the range extends from the secular to the sacred and would express surprise that a Christian college would engage in what is commonly referred to as secular music.

Indeed, if the secular/sacred division is a dichotomy falsely constructed by man, then perhaps a better approach is through Ephesians 5:10 which encourages us to "try to learn what is pleasing to the Lord" (NASV) or "prove what is acceptable to the Lord" (NKJV).

Instead of making musical choice on the basis of a particular performer or style, we suggest that we can and should listen to a wide range of music which is appropriate to place before the Lord. One test of appropriateness is truth. All truth is of God, therefore all music must be judged by Christians in relation to truth. The late Frank Gaebelein has suggested that truth has durability—it does not wear out, it keeps on being true.

Truth also has unity—it has its own inner coherence; it will tend toward order.

And truth has integrity—it is not contrived merely for the sake of effect or marketability.

A second test is beauty. Jonathan Edwards expressed the concept of beauty that is appropriate before God when he said:

God is the foundation and fountain of all being and all beauty . . . of whom, and through whom, and to whom is all being and perfection, and whose being and beauty are, as it were, the sum and comprehension of all existence and excellence.

A third test is excellence. This is not elitism; this is rather the measure of our listening and our performance according to God's standard of excellence. This is to pursue quality, not mediocrity.

The artistic experience, couched within the above framework, allows us to implement one of the Cedarville College objectives: to undergird the student in the Christian faith and stimulate him/her to evaluate knowledge in the light of scriptural truth. At the same time we attempt to foster appreciation of and participation in wholesome cultural activities.

You were about your Father's business
Talking with rabbis in the temple
Playing with children
Sailing with fishermen
Forgiving sins and healing lepers.
Tell me, Jesus,
Which part of your life was sacred;
Which part was concerned with the world?

RODGERS FAMILY SHARES MUSICAL TALENT

Professors Jerry and Kathy Rodgers ministered at the Muskoka Baptist Conference in Huntsville, Ontario, July 27-August 3. Joining speaker Dr. David Jeremiah '63, the Rodgers and their daughters, Theresa, 19, and Lori, 18, provided special music, song leading, and a concert. Before coming to Cedarville in 1990, Jerry was with the Disney World orchestra and band, the Akron Symphony, and for 20 years was with "The President's Own" Marine Band. Kathy played for the Akron, Alexandria, and Prince William symphonies. She has also taught in the public and Christian school settings.

ANDERSON FAMILY MINISTERS IN CHINA

Lyle '70 and Connie (Clark '73) Anderson and their children, Lori and Eric, along with Myron Youngman '76, Ruthie Fareno '83, and Ruthie's friend Theresa Boyes, traveled to China for more than a month of musical and educational experiences.

This cross-cultural exchange of classical, contemporary, and sacred music with the Chinese people gave the team the opportunity to talk and share with many. Their time in China also included performing for the Fellowship, a group of English-speaking foreigners in China. The average attendance on Sunday was 300.

Besides their hard work, the team enjoyed seeing the magnificent sights of Beijing and Shanghai.

CONDUCTING THE CLASSICS

Darryl Miller '71 is an independent project consultant in Nashville, Tennessee. He also presents music workshops across the country. From 1985 to 1990 he was administrator of the Music Department and associate organist at Coral Ridge Presbyterian Church in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Darryl played the organ, accompanied at the piano, chaired the annual Church Music Explosion, and conducted the handbell program. He also developed and directed the Coral Ridge School of the Arts, directed the annual Vesper Organ Recital Series, and appeared in Concert Series events. He presented church music workshops, organ and lecture recitals, and accompanied choirs and soloists throughout the United States, in Europe, and in Canada. Darryl and his wife, Susan, have a daughter.

MUSIC FACULTY PERFORM IN CANADA

Michael DiCuirci

Charles Clevenger

Professors Michael DiCuirci and Charles Clevenger traveled to Huntsville, Ontario Muskoka Baptist Conference to provide concerts for a week-long session of camp. This resort-like facility is located 2 1/2 hours north of Toronto and is attended by approximately 800 Canadians and Americans each week. DiCuirci led music and performed many arrangements on a variety of brass instruments while Clevenger accompanied and performed on the piano. They were joined by Jim '86 and Eileen (Friesen '88) Unger who added vocal and flute to the versatile "quartet." The group performed twice daily and ended their stay with a concert. Mr. DiCuirci recapped the week as most exciting. "The celebration of both Canada Day (July 1) and Independence Day (July 4) in one week was a thrill!"

DRAMA TEAM USES TALENTS OVERSEAS

Gary Barker '86 and Faith Linn '83 in a scene from The Rainmaker.

Three Cedarville College alumni and sixteen Cedarville College students joined in January to form a drama team that toured China during the month of June.

Myron Youngman '76 used his creative abilities to put the programs together and plan the trip. Faith Linn '83 assisted Myron in compiling literature and music and also performed in the programs. Faith's M.A. in theatre arts and experience in professional theatre were assets to the team.

The group also welcomed Gary Barker '86 who has been teaching in the Theatre Department of Emporia State University (Kansas) since completing his M.F.A. in acting. In addition to his performance responsibilities, Gary also directed many of the students in their scenes.

While in China, the team performed their programs about love and hope in several universities where they were warmly received by the students.

The class of 1941 enjoyed their 50-year reunion during graduation weekend in June with 30 classmates and spouses in attendance. Our alumni shared a delicious meal, talked of earlier times, and presented Cedarville College with the first sign for the intracampus signage program. Three others will follow. The signs point the way to various campus locations.

Tim Bosworth '71 is the new director of staff personnel services at Cedarville College. In 1984 he returned to the College to become dean of men after 13 years in public and Christian school teaching and administration. Of his latest career change, he says, "With the growth of the College, human resource management will be a critical factor in the future. I'm looking forward to being a part of it." Tim and his wife, Rita (De Atley '71), are the parents of Ben, 16, Dan, 14, and Suzanne, 12.

Approximately 60 alumni and friends gathered at Locust Hills Golf Course in Springfield, Ohio, on July 13 for the 1991 Yellow Jacket Club Alumni Golf Tournament. Dave McDonald took the men's trophy with a 74 and Cynthia Sawyer won the women's flight for the third year in a row with an 84. Congratulations and thanks for supporting the Yellow Jacket Club!

Alumni Profiles

FOREVER SISTERS, FOREVER FRIENDS

Dee (Jackson '80) Haynes and Deb (Jackson '81) Searles

Dee Haynes '80 and Deb Searles '81 were always known as the Jackson sisters around the campus of Cedarville College. Today they still hear their maiden name, Jackson, during their concert tours.

Although Dee lives in Portland, Oregon, and Deb in Wellington, Ohio, they manage to get together once a year for a brief concert tour. When not together the sisters remain extremely active with composing music and performing solo concerts.

Dee and her husband, Dana, work in Portland with the Hmng people who have been displaced from the country of Laos. They host Bible studies and spend much of their time sharing Jesus Christ with this hurting population in the inner city. Dee has many opportunities to sing professionally for churches and social functions. Besides leading a Bible study for Women's Club, she also enjoys the task of raising their three-year-old son.

Deb and Cal ('77) Searles minister at Camden Baptist Church, where Cal is the pastor. Deb claims her life has changed in the past seven years with the addition of a husband, three lovely children, and the church. Deb also teaches a large women's Bible study and is anticipating homeschooling her children, Sarah who is 5, Amy, 3, and Timothy, nine months. Deb uses music whenever she can with her little ones and has begun to put motions with words in order to aid in Scripture memorization.

The Jacksons began their Cedarville College career after finishing a tour with the "Let Freedom Ring Singers" in the winter of 1977. They became highly involved in Christian service groups and concert chorale after their debut at the Alpha Chi Talent night. At that event, the sisters sang "Yes, I Know," a song which they wrote (and Christine Wyrzten recorded) and won first prize. During that evening Deb and Dee were also told by Kathy (Howell '76) Sturgis that they had been accepted to the Australia team for that summer. The first prize money was the beginning of their Australia fund. Cal Searles happened to be in the audience and on this eventful night he determined to get to know Deb better.

The sisters fondly remember their years at Cedarville and those following. Ministering through the Christian Service Department helped them make many contacts with churches. Paul Gathany '69, general manager of CDR Radio, approached Deb and Dee with the opportunity to record their first album with Torch Records. The girls were also given the opportunity to travel and take their music to churches. Their dream of writing, singing, and sharing their music as well as Jesus Christ became reality. Even after Dee moved to Oregon, the sisters kept their rigorous schedule to fulfill previous commitments. Today they are thankful for the once-a-year opportunity to travel and sing together.

Currently, Deb and Dee have three albums and two song books of their music available. Many of their original songs have been recorded by Christine Wyrzten and Nancy Honeytree. Dee's song "Through the Fire" was also an inspiration for Joseph Stowell's ('66), book Through the Fire. Their albums entitled "For Him," "At His Feet," and "Forever Friends" along with the song book, Life Song, can be ordered by writing Deb Searles at 51264 Betts Road in Wellington, OH 44090.

The sisters look forward to many more years of singing together and sharing their music with others. They are working on a new album which will focus on ministering to women with young children.

A JOURNEY HOME

Debra (Moody '81) Stewart

This article, "A Journey Home" by John McMillian, appeared in The Tennessee Magazine, April 1991. This reprint is by permission of The Tennessee Magazine which is an official publication of the Tennessee Electric Cooperative Association. Photo is courtesy of John McMillian.

"Through my work, people can sense what I believe and what I feel life is about; it says something deeper than that's a pretty picture."

When Brentwood artist Debra [Moody '81] Stewart made this observation, she was describing her artwork, her sense of style, and the reasoning behind her paintings. A description of her work seems necessary because Stewart's style is not easy to define.

"It's baffled a couple of gallery owners because they say, 'You're not folk art, you're not primitive, you're not really naive,'" Stewart says, adding "but be glad you have your own style."

Indeed, her artwork does have its own style; something that catches the eye and calls one's attention to intimate remembrances of life in simpler times. The images she brings to life aren't literal, but as she puts it, are "places I feel like people would like to live; places that are conducive to a quiet simple lifestyle."

"I prefer to think of it as realism dealt with very simply," Stewart says slowly, searching for the right words. "A simplistic realism, I think, is the best way to describe it."

A petite 31-year-old who's as delightful as her paintings, Stewart lives in the wooded, picturesque countryside of Brentwood, Tennessee, just outside of Franklin, with her husband, Allen (a 1981 graduate of Cedarville College), and their two sons, Trey, 7, and Lane, 5. Here she paints scenes that exalt her spiritual values and are contemplative of a world in which the day-to-day pace is a little slower.

"I started off as an art major at one university," says Stewart. She transferred to Cedarville College where, heeding the advice of her advisor, she changed her major to education so she would be able to teach art after graduating.

In the 1980s, Stewart taught a pre-first class at Hillsboro Elementary School in Tennessee.

"I dearly loved that, but I have two boys, and I wanted to be a mommy to them," she says, explaining her switch to full-time artist.

While teaching, Stewart began writing some children's stories and even had them printed for her classroom.

"I'd make these little books to introduce sight words that we had to have in phonics," she says, beckoning the listener's attention as she searches through a portfolio of beautifully detailed pen and ink sketches, a medium with which she no longer works.

After finding what she's looking for, she adds, "I water colored all of the covers—26 books. This is the original; I water colored the whole thing in for them. That's where I felt the artwork was a great asset in the classroom. It was a lot of fun."

Explaining why she changed careers to become a full-time artist, she says, "A good friend said, 'Why don't you try to paint?' That's when I painted 'Quiet Moments' and almost right away people really liked it. It was kind of crazy, you know, we all said let's print it and see what happens."

Stewart adds emphatically, "You never print your first painting. Now that I think about it, that was dumb." Shaking her head and shrugging her shoulders she leans forward and continues, "But yet, it wasn't dumb because it paid for itself in three weeks. That's why I feel so fortunate and so grateful because people have really responded."

In fact, people have responded so well that Stewart's paintings are now being distributed both locally and nationally, and her work is receiving positive public response.

"Usually, painters paint what they feel. I paint places that I feel have a sense of value," she says.

Stewart believes that the success of any artist is linked to a unique style.

"I deal with the same subject matter that hundreds of artists deal with," she says, smiling. "Hopefully, the way in which I interpret it is somewhat unique."

Changing the course of conversation, Stewart offers what she says she believes is the reason her work has become so popular.

"I think my artwork has a quiet stillness about it which people miss in their lives today," Stewart says. "I paint the physical structure of a house, but hopefully it draws people into what kinds of things go on inside the home."

For this reason Stewart refers to everything she paints as "a journey home."

Although she is a native midwesterner, Debby says home for her is a state of mind. Home is where those you love live.

To keep this state of mind, the artist listens to old television shows like "The Donna Reed Show," "My Three Sons," and "Make Room for Daddy." These provide the right atmosphere while she paints.

"It seems like family life was a little more defined back then," she explains. "I've always had a lifestyle in my mind that I think is a valuable one, where family is a family and at the core of it all is their faith," Stewart says.

"I'm not saying you're going to find your peace and tranquility in my artwork, because underneath it all, I feel like real peace can only be found through one's own personal faith."

As a visual testament to her religious beliefs, Stewart pictures a church in all of her paintings.

"I've had people look at my paintings and say, 'You're a Christian, aren't you?'" she says. "That, to me, is the greatest compliment anybody could give."

SPECIAL EXPERIENCES SHAPE A MUSICIAN

Daniel Price '84

Daniel Price '84 may not be able to travel back in time to the days of chapel, Christian ministries, or Concert Chorale. However his years at Cedarville College have made a lasting impression on his life. Daniel feels that his experiences, as well as the people he met, helped shape him into who he is today—and where he is going in the future.

Daniel Price, a 1984 graduate, majored in music education. He points to his participation in the musical activities at Cedarville as a large contribution to both his musical and spiritual development.

Daniel kept a busy schedule, serving as president of the student chapter of the Music Educators National Conference (MENC), member of the Kingsmen Quartet and Concert Chorale, tour guide for Pi Delta, and member of a Swordbearer extension team.

The Swordbearers experience taught Daniel to serve people and serve with other students. He also continued to learn how to work with others while singing with the Kingsmen Quartet. Traveling with four other students, staying in many homes, and singing in numerous churches helped him gain confidence around people.

Another valuable experience for Daniel was spending a summer at the National Music Camp in Interlochen, Michigan, where he was able to continue his private study with Dr. Charles Ellington, professor of music at Cedarville College. During the summer, Daniel worked with many non-Christian artists. He vividly remembers becoming more aware of nonbelievers through this experience.

Kelly Fath '91 travels as a college rep for the Admissions Office. A political science major, he will attend Georgetown University School of Law in the fall of 1992.

Jon Purple

Carl Ruby

Jon Purple and Carl Ruby '83 join the Student Services Department as associate deans of campus life. For Jon, who was formerly dean of students at Liberty University, coming to the 'Ville answers a six-year heart's desire. His focus in this full-time position includes working with resident directors, resident advisors, and male students in the areas of discipline, counseling and discipleship. Carl Ruby '83 will remain in the counseling department at Cedarville, but anticipates building the area of special programs with student services. He will focus on training resident directors and resident advisors as well as the student body in the areas of counseling, emergencies, and stress management. Carl will also present a study of Cedarville student characteristics and standards as compared to other colleges.

CEARVILLE COLLEGE IS COMING TO YOU

The Alumni Association is on the move to meet with Cedarville alumni, parents of present students, prospective students and their families, friends, and supporters in your region!

College administrators, faculty members, and Cedarville singing teams will bring news of the College and a new promotional video. We are planning to hold regional gatherings in cities across the country, but we need the help of willing alumni to make these events successful. The dates and leadership for some cities have not yet been confirmed, and we invite you to participate! If you would like to organize a Cedarville Alumni Gathering in your area, please write Jane Adams Smith, Alumni Office, P.O. Box 601, Cedarville 45314-0601 or call 513-766-2211 ext. 331.

Eastern: Washington D.C., Philadelphia, Harrisburg, New Jersey/New York, Buffalo, Boston, Erie, Rochester, Binghamton.

West Coast: Tacoma, San Diego, Los Angeles, Sacramento/San Jose.

EAST COAST GATHERINGS

New York area alumni

Philadelphia and New York City Alumni gather each spring to enjoy fellowship and fun. Philadelphia alums met over dinner at the Montgomery Inn in nearby Lansdale, Pa. and New York alumni gathered for an afternoon meal in the home of Sharon (Bartemus '74) and Gene Steffenatta in Garden City. Both groups were updated on college happenings as well as events in each other's lives. New York, Philadelphia, and New Jersey alumni are faithful in their attendance year after year. A big THANKS to each host who has planned a regional alumni gathering!

In addition to learning from college activities, Daniel appreciates some special people at Cedarville because of their impact in his life. Dr. Lyle Anderson made a lasting impression because he always made sure the Chorale sang music which centered around ministry. In fact, Lyle and Connie Anderson were like a second father and mother to him. Daniel points out that Kevin Smith organized the Kingsmen Quartet well. Daniel credits Myron Youngman '76, director of campus activities at that time, because "he helped teach me how to think and how to use my imagination." By putting on creative variety shows with a spiritual emphasis, Daniel discovered the varied means and aspects of worship.

After graduating from Cedarville, Daniel sang one summer with the Santa Fe Desert Chorale and earned a masters degree in choral conducting at the University of Cincinnati. He used his musical abilities by serving as the director of vocal activities for Dayton Christian High School for three years. He directed and traveled with the school's singing group, "Spirit of Praise" and conducted a summer production at the Mason Community Theater.

Daniel married Shawnee Booher '83N in 1987 and is currently pursuing a DMA in choral conducting at the University of Cincinnati. He also serves as assistant director of music at Fairhaven Church in Dayton.

Daniel's goals include teaching at the collegiate level and writing choral music. Ultimately, he would like to start a professional chorus.

1991 Children Of Alumni Scholars

COASP— AN INTERVIEW

Trish Walker is between her junior and senior year in high school. She is also one of 30 students her age to participate in the Children Of Alumni Scholar Program. Trish has also grown up in Cedarville and has had maximum exposure to the campus because her mother and father are actively involved in the College and the community. Dick Walker '74N is the director of campus activities and the mastermind of many campuswide events. Linda (Madsen '71) is busy at home and with tutoring learning-disabled children. Even though Trish has lived in the village for 17 years she stated, "I've gained a whole new perspective of the campus and classes during the three weeks of summer studies!"

In a recent interview Trish talked about some of her thoughts about the experience.

Q. You had a variety of classes to choose from. Which classes did you pick?

A. I selected The Christian Life with Professor David Warren and Beginning Tennis with my uncle, Professor Elvin King; but I didn't get any special treatment!

Q. Were the classes different from high school and why did you like the courses?

A. You are responsible to meet deadlines and a professor isn't pushing you to get the work done. You have to discipline yourself to complete assignments. We wrote two papers and had three exams in The Christian Life. The papers were challenging because we had to write our personal testimony and a letter to an unsaved friend. We could use a typewriter or computer, so we had opportunity to learn those skills, also. Because the class is accelerated, we had three tests in three weeks. Professor Warren's class was great! He brought a lot of excitement and humor to the class and we all got along well. One day he brought his dog to class in order to use him in an example of human conscience and the Holy Spirit.

Tennis was a lot of fun because we played against each other and we were outside for one hour every afternoon.

Chapel was also an inspiration. The professors and MIS teams presented most of the services.

Q. Even though you live in Cedarville you chose to stay with the other students in the dormitory. How did that experience impact you?

A. I love dorm life! When I first discussed with my parents about coming to Summer Studies, I wasn't sure I wanted to stay in the dorm. But it turned out to be a highlight of college. I stayed in Printy with eight girls in my unit and they were from all over America—California, New York, Illinois, and Ohio. We would usually study late at night, order out for pizza, and exercise. There were also special outings to the Cincinnati Zoo, Covington Landing, King's Island, the mall, Columbus, and to see the play, "Oliver," in Springfield. The resident director and resident advisors were very helpful. In the three weeks I lived on campus I went home about three times. I made some great friends and the entire group (10 young men and 18 young women) grew close.

Q. So, Trish, would you recommend the Summer Scholars Program for other children of alumni?

A. Yes, for many reasons! It was a great opportunity for me to meet other teens from all over America. That is important since I grew up in Cedarville. Classes were great and I got a head start on college. As a child of a Cedarville alumnus, I also received a $500 tuition scholarship. The other students I became close to are planning to attend Cedarville in another year and that will make my Freshman year an easier transition. I'm glad I attended and would encourage others to try this summer studies program!

If you know of a college fair in your area and you would like to attend as a Cedarville College representative, call Admissions at 1-800-777-2211.

Thank you, alumni, for taking an active part in the recruitment process. Continue to contact the Admissions Office if you know a student who is interested in attending Cedarville College. We want to do all we can to help you.

Construction is progressing for the new three-floor, 68,000 square-foot laboratory, classroom, and office building. The $7 million facility will be completed in summer 1992. Fundraising is over half completed with gifts and multiyear commitments continuing to come in.

The building will be one of the largest and best equipped facilities of its kind among comparable colleges. The engineering program will acquire mechanical and electrical engineering laboratories, a CAD (computer-assisted design) laboratory, classrooms, and faculty offices. Nursing will gain clinical, audio-visual, and computer laboratories, class and conference rooms, and faculty offices. Space for science and mathematics studies will nearly double.

Keep up to date with the latest Cedarville College intercollegiate sports action by calling 513-766-8800. The "Yellow Jacket SportsLine" is available 24 hours each day, featuring three minutes of the latest scores and interviews conducted by Sports Information Director Mark Womack. This service is sponsored by CDR Radio and the Athletic Department.

Class News Heritage

Joe '39 and Cletis (Jacobs '39) Waddle live in Yellow Springs, Ohio, on three acres. They keep busy in the summer with yard work and planting. It's always open house at Waddle Woods...stop in!

Wilmer and Rachel (Creswell '38) Funderburg live near New Carlisle on the farm where Wilmer was born. They were thrilled when Mark Kordic of WCDR Radio asked them to display a CDR sign in their yard. Though retired, the Funderburgs enjoy volunteer work, such as Meals-on-Wheels, and working in a retirement home.

Eleanor (Cooley '39) Finney is praising the Lord for restored good health since her recent quadruple bypass heart surgery. She has promised to serve the Lord in any way that she can by helping friends and neighbors. Eleanor tries to participate in at least one activity a day. Recently reminiscing, Helen O'Bryant '44 recalled rooming at the other end of Cedarville for $1.00 per week. For 34 years she taught second and third grade. Children would go wild when she slid down the slides. She also engaged in hitting fly balls for the boys to catch. Traveling extensively, she has visited all 50 states and has a rock to represent each one. She states, "I am very glad to be a Cedarville College alumnus."

Focus on the Field

Boyd '65 and Kathy (Johnson '68) Griffith were deeply involved in the production of Jesus, a video that has been widely circulated around the world. It is estimated that nearly 450 million people in foreign lands have seen the film, including some of the military personnel in Operation Desert Storm. One Army chaplain said it was "more like a revival than a war."

Bill Bacheller '73, his wife, Kathy (Cobb '73N), and their five sons returned to the States from Brazil in July. Bill has been teaching Old Testament and Hebrew at the Evangelical Seminary of Brazil in Anapolis, Goias. While home on furlough, they will reside in Douglas, Wyoming.

Philip McDonald '74 and his wife Becky serve in Bangladesh. They report that the Middle East situation has angered the Islamic people against Christians. Churches have been stoned and burnt. The missionaries were confined to their homes for their own protection. Amidst all the difficulty, the McDonalds welcomed Danielle Joi-Marie to the family on April 12, 1991. She weighed 7 lbs. 12 oz. and returned to the United States with her family in June 1991.

Larry and Sallie (Pickard '77) Fogle were planning their return to Central African Republic in August when they received word that the compound in which they lived was looted and burned. They will delay their departure, as will Jim '75 and Rachel (Mayo '78N) Chambers who were planning to accompany the Foggles to the CAR.

Gary '83H and Becky (Seldon '78) Kuhn are appointees for the Philippines with ABWE. Gary served as director of alumni relations at Cedarville College from 1978 to 1989.

Lisa McClure '79 was commissioned for missionary service in Bogata, Columbia, South America, by first Baptist Church in Medina, Ohio. Lisa is an appointee of the Association of Baptists for World Evangelism. She currently has 60% of her support. She will teach MKs at Bogata Christian Academy and help with church planting activities.

David '80 and Beth Anne (Payne '81) Standridge, affiliated with Independent Faith Mission, in Rome, Italy, were very pleased with the response they received from a recent literature campaign. Materials are sent to people who have not heard the Gospel.

Tim '81 and Joann (Bradshaw '81) Hoganson are awaiting visas and additional support for missionary service in Brazil.

Vini Jacquery '82 helped to implement a new program called "Operation Rescue." The program is designed to encourage Christian couples to legally adopt one or two Brazilian children.

Randy Coolbaugh '82N resigned as area director for Child Evangelism Fellowship in Wisconsin to join The Evangelical Alliance Mission (TEAM) to serve as chaplain of Sentani International MK School in Irian Jaya, Indonesia. Randy expects to leave for the field by July 1992.

Aaron Bowes '85 married Annegret Grosse on March 27, 1987 in Nierstein, West Germany. Their children are Hanna Christine, 3, and Philip Aaron, 1. Aaron and Annegret are serving with Evangelical Baptist Missions in Augsburg, Germany.

Deaths

Ruth (Collins '28) McMillan, 83, died on June 4, 1991. She is survived by her husband, James '28, three sons, eight grandchildren, and three great grandchildren.
